General Sessions:

This panel will focus on a full scope of experts from supplier to the end user and the infrastructure and permitting requirements in between.
- The geopolitical impact the conflict in Gaza is having on energy security in America and Israel: The Council for a Secure America (CSA) has been at the forefront of educating key congressional, energy, and state-level leaders on the geopolitical, energy, and security implications of the Israel-HAMAS conflict. CSA will provide an in-depth analysis of the conflict and the implications for energy producers in the United States and around the globe.
- Telling Our Story: A family perspective regarding the future of the American oil and natural gas industry: In the spirit of last year's "Then and Now" panel, Miller Energy Co-Founder Drew Martin and Miller Investment Partner Kelly Miller will share their perspectives of the industry. Drew and Kelly will not only discuss their past experiences, but their thoughts on the future of the industry for small/family-owned businesses.
- Tariffs Translated: Join representatives from the National Foreign Trade Council and The Heritage Foundation as they discuss international trade, and the impact tariffs might have on future markets for American oil and natural gas.
- What Directors Think (Presented by FTI Consulting): Activists are voicing their frustrations over strategy, capital allocation, and proposed M&A. Learn from experts with an "in the trenches" perspective to help you mount a defense and preserve your right to operate and access the capital markets.
